The Class of 1992 was fortunate to have known these three men. All of them were our professors, each adding to our education in his own way. Although their presence will be missed at Loyola, they will continue to live through the physicians they helped to train.

We remember them, and we thank them for their dedication.

Margaret J. Del Sol (Aug. 22, 1966-Oct. 11, 1990)

Margaret was full of life, fun-loving, giving and caring. A good, pure, beautiful human being. We were so lucky to have known her for these two years. She was and still is a source of inspiration for us to work harder, to do our best. Not to do our best, after living through this tragedy, would be to waste the gift of her days with us.

For years to come, we'll think of Margaret and wonder "why" and "what if ..." but then we'll also remember the gift that she was and always will be. We'll always remember what Margaret's short life has meant to us, and never forget that each day is full of potential to be fulfilled or to be wasted.

Four Years Together

Just Starting Out

It was Day One of medical school: we divided into groups to tour the school and fill out forms. The hot, humid day was the topic of conversation that day especially for those who came from west of the Mississippi. It was exciting yet scary to look around and wonder what the next four years would hold. There were so many new things to learn that day — what did MDL stand for? Would we ever remember how to get to anatomy lab and why was Corridor B so long? But we acted cool picking up our microscopes and histology slides and learning that all medical school classes are referred to by their first syllable or some arrangement of their initials. We sat in the auditorium listening to Dr. Leischner and watching him taste the Mountain Dew urine of the patient he was presenting. Those first few days were spent trying to appear nonchalant and unafraid, tempering our excitement that we were finally here.

... the back was easy
compared to the pterygopalatine fossa.

The day finally arrived, much discussed with nonmedical friends, the first anatomy lab. We entered a long room filled with that soon-to-be-familiar smell of formalin and saw plastic bags containing human body shapes wrapped in green surgical towels. After "our Bodies" were blessed, we started on their backs, not believing that we had to memorize all those muscles. As we became more comfortable, we realized that the back was easy compared to the pterygopalatine fossa. By the time we graduated, would any of us remember what that was? Did we even know then?

Working Towards ...

We suffered through the volume and abstraction of biochemistry, churned through the phone book-sized handout, highlighted in three colors and made up mnemonics that were harder to remember than the original material. In histology we tried not to get motion sickness moving through high power fields quickly. Which structures were the tennis rackets? Which were the boxcars?

Which structures were the tennis rackets?

By second semester we were comfortable. We took our usual seats in the lecture hall — the same people up front for the best view, on the sides for the railing to nap on, or in the back for easy access to the door. We were getting closer as a class; a natural occurrence after spending every day in the same room, sharing class notes, comparing tips about the best books to buy and exchanging key facts for the exam. During those insecure moments, someone was always there to reassure that you would pass and that it was not too late to begin studying. The volume of material was overwhelming that second semester, however, we were encouraged because neuroanatomy and physiology were more clinical than our first semester courses. Ethics was that semester also, giving us one course where we could actually speak and did not have to memorize anything.

After first year we had a much-needed summer vacation. Nonmedical friends and family asked us questions we couldn't answer but felt we should be able to: "Why does my back hurt?" "How does my blood pressure medicine work?" "What can you do for my sinuses?"

The White Coat

Almost to M.D.

Back as sophomores, we occupied the grown-up side of the MDL's and a lecture hall that faced the other way. On the other side there were 130 lost souls smelling of anatomy lab and panicking about co-ops. Micro and pharm were rude awakenings to what large volumes of material were really like. Each day brought ten new drugs and ten new bugs to be memorized. We feared that blowing off a few days would mean missing asthma drugs and the causes of hepatitis. On the other hand, we worried less about Naegleria fowleri and Diphilobothrium latum. Cool names, but would we ever really encounter them after the exam? We just wanted to learn this so we could get on to the White Coats.

Each day brought ten new drugs and
ten new bugs
to be memorized.

The next semester we finally began Physical Diagnosis, with that annoying-but-often-used abbreviation, "P-Dog". How great to start seeing patients and to see each other in the halls looking so professional. We figured out which way the stethoscope goes in the ears so we could hear that Grade VI/VI cardiac murmur. We were proud when we could palpate a liver that went all the way to the pelvic brim without being told it was there. Those first H&P's were painfully long and disjointed. How were we supposed to introduce ourselves? "Hi, uh, my preceptor, uh, said it'd be okay, um if I did an H&P, I mean, history and physical, unless you're too tired ... I'm Dr., um, well I'm a medical student, um, could I come back later?" But each H&P went smoother than the previous one, until we could actually perform the 73 steps without cues and it occurred to us that we were acting a lot like doctors.

St. Luke's Day

Physical Diagnosis, Organ Systems and time spent feeling guilty for not sticking to our Boards Part I study schedule kept us busy that semester. Organ Systems integrated our previous classes using examples of patient cases. We had questions that would seem silly by graduation: "Is a sodium of 120 bad?" "What is D_5LR ?"

After final exams, we were forced to prepare for boards. We searched for libraries throughout Chicago and elsewhere looking for the perfect place to study. We took up study time discussing which review books to buy and the pros and cons of flash cards. As usual, we supported one another with, "Oh, you'll do fine. You've studied more than I have." As our three-foot stacks of notes and review books kept falling over, we wondered why our boards had to coincide with the every seventeen years' hatching of cicadas.

Like everything else, the two day hell that was National Boards Part I passed; most of us certain that we had failed. After a short vacation, we returned for something new: no MDL's, fewer lectures, patient interaction every day, and even call! We had to show up wearing grown-up clothes and worked with a new group of strangers every six weeks. We had new things to learn, essential things like: what's a "SOAP" note? where are the vital sign sheets kept for this hospital — in the drawer, on the door, in the chart, or on some clipboard that was nowhere to be found? Every hospital that we went to — Loyola, Hines, Resurrection, St. Francis, Mercy, Alexian Brothers, and Columbus — did things differently, and of course had different qualities of food and call rooms. We were asked to do simple things, "Call a urology consult and get a cervical spine MRI for Mr. Jones." By the end of the rotation that request would take five minutes; but in the beginning, we just looked around the nurses' station, called the wrong people, and filled out the wrong colored forms. As early third year students, we actually filled out each box on the physician order sheets and forgot important items in our progress notes like vital signs. But at last, we were working with patients. What a great feeling — following patients over time, talking to families, and being a part of a service - even if we knew that some of our most important duties consisted of scut.

Trick or Treat

We delivered babies, observed brain surgery, and interacted with dying people. We got together with friends on different rotations to talk about the amazing and sometimes disturbing things we were experiencing — things we could not tell our nonmedical friends, at least not during meals. We learned skills like drawing blood and starting IVs. We learned to bring several angiocaths, to have the tape ready, and to place a towel under the patient's arm so that no one would know how much blood was lost before we connected the tubing.

... we learned what kind of physicians
we wanted to become.

We carried beepers, wore scrubs, and took call. As third year students, call was exciting and something we almost enjoyed. We had simple hopes: to know the correct answer on rounds, to be helpful and not burdensome to the team, and to stay awake during conferences. We had the chance as third years to get to know classmates that we had just said hello to previously. Working closely with attendings and residents, we learned what kind of physicians we wanted to become.

Fun In The Sun

By fourth year we were comfortable putting on our heavy white coats with the permanent ring around the collar. By then we knew the most efficient way to see patients, get labs, and write notes. We were deciding during this time what we wanted to be when we grew up. For some, clerkships reinforced previous career goals. Others began to explore fields not yet considered. Now we were on to electives — the months that we had dreamed of those mornings during the surgery clerkship when the alarm went off at 4:00a.m. We appreciated rotations like cardiographics and radiology. These electives allowed us to learn something, but get up at 8:00 and be home by 2:00 with plenty of time for lunch. We could do whatever elective we wanted, from Trauma with q2 call to electives where reading at home was optional. We were no longer at the bottom of the ladder on the floors. There were new third year students who actually looked more green than we did. We began thinking of residency applications, getting glossy brochures about programs in a field that we would decide against the next week. We received unsolicited information about the excellent quality of life in Peoria and Rockford with their free meals, free parking and home call. We agonized over critical issues like where the commas should go in our personal statements. Eventually we made some choices, typed out our life stories, threw in a picture and sent off the applications.

We juggled residency interviews among externships, St. Lucia, and discretionary time. Match Day became our focus during February and March. On March 18 we gathered, excited but apprehensive, to open the envelopes that would scatter us across the country. With Match Day behind us, National Boards Part II seemed insignificant. Most of us finished classes by April or May with only graduation, June 13, 1992, between us and our M.D. Medical school seemed long when we considered all the reading and late nights; but time had really flown when we reflected on the events of the past four years. We learned and saw more than we had ever thought possible. Several classmates married. Others had children. The friendships we formed would last a lifetime. Although at times medical school was frustrating, exhausting, and emotionally draining, we will never forget the exciting, rewarding, and often hilarious experiences of medical school. We will never forget how we became doctors.

FAMILY

There's a special kind of closeness
that only families know,
That begins with childhood trust
and deepens as you grow.
There's a special kind of happiness
in sharing little things,
The laughter, smiles, and quiet
talks that daily living brings.
There's a special kind of comfort
in knowing your family is there,
To back you up, to cheer you up,
to understand and care.
Of all the treasures life may bring,
your family means the most,
And whether near or far apart,
hold you close.

To laugh often and much; to win the respect of intelligent people and the affection of children; to earn the appreciation of honest critics and endure the betrayal of false friends; to appreciate beauty, to find the best in others;

to leave the world a bit better, whether by a healthy child, a garden patch or a redeemed social condition; to know even one life has breathed easier because you have lived. This is to have succeeded.

IF —
"Brother Square-Toes"—Rewards and Fairies

Rudyard Kipling

If you can keep your head when all about you are losing theirs and blaming it on you,
If you can trust yourself when all men doubt you,
but make allowance for their doubting too;
If you can wait and not be tired by waiting,
Or being lied about, don't deal in lies,
Or being hated don't give way to hating,
And yet don't look too good, not talk too wise:

If you can dream-and not make dreams your master;
If you can think-and not make thoughts your aim;
If you can meet with Triumph and Disaster
And treat those two impostors just the same;
If you can bear to hear the truth you've spoken
Twisted by knaves to make a trap for fools,
Or watch the things you gave your life to, broken,
And stoop and build'em up with worn-out tools;

If you can make one heap of all your winnings
And risk it on one turn of pitch-and-toss,
And lose, and start again at your beginnings
And never breathe a word about your loss;
If you can force your heart and nerve and sinew
To serve your turn long after they are gone
And so hold on when there is nothing in you Except the Will which says to them: "Hold on!"

If you can talk with crowds and keep your virtue,
Or walk with Kings-nor lose the common touch,
If neither foes nor loving friends can hurt you,
If all men count with you, but none too much;
If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds; worth of distance run,
Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it,
And-which is more-you'll be a Man, my son!

THANK YOU FOR BEING A FRIEND.

Travel down the road and back again.
Your heart is true, you're a pal and a confidant.
I'm not ashamed to say I hope it will always stay that way.
My hat is off - won't you stand up and take a bow.
And if you threw a party - invited everyone you know.
Well, you would see the biggest gift would be from me
and the card attached would say

THANK YOU FOR BEING A FRIEND.

If it's a car you lack, I'd surely pay you a Cadillac.
Whatever you need, anytime or the day or night.
I'm not ashamed to say I hope it will always stay that way.
My hat is off - won't you stand up and take a bow.
And when we both get older with walkin' canes and hair of gray.
Well have no fear even though it's hard to hear,
I will stand real close and say

THANK YOU FOR BEING A FRIEND! Lyrics by Andrew Lloyd Webber

Sing in me, Muse, and through me tell the story of that man skilled in all ways of contending,
the wanderer, harried for years on end,
after he plundered the stronghold

He saw the townlands

Dearest Doctor Shivee,

CONGRATULATIONS on your achievement. We are all very proud of you ... of course Mr. Boo takes the main credit for helping you through all those long nights! But we do have one big concern: If you can't grow it in water then what will you do? Of course you can date all kinds, but do tell us two things: did he think the knee high's were a fashion statement? and did he ever figure out he had to pucker? Don't forget to put gas in your car, find Ann Taylor, seek out a Falafel stand and the closest Victoria's secret! We expect you back in sunny California ASAP.

*All of our love,
Mom, Vida & Mr. Boo*

CONGRATULATIONS
